

NEW ZEALAND'S LUXURY COUNTRY INNS

Woven into the landscape of New Zealand is one of its many attractions, the luxury country inn. They come in different styles, but have many things in common.

- Small properties with an average of three to five rooms.
- Operated by an owner who lives on the property and provides “hands on” management.
- An atmosphere that is a reflection of that particular owner.
- Very comfortable environment with attention to detail evident.
- Outstanding cuisine.
- A high level of personal service.
- Usually a rural setting
- Non-fishing spouses enjoy the options they present for day tours.
- Priced on the upper end of the scale

For the fly fisher, many of NZ's luxury country inns are in areas with outstanding fishing. Using local independent guides, one can enjoy both the comfort of the inn as well as productive fishing.
